Some Large Lumber Dealers Favor It. Especially American Manufacturers in Canada-One Argument Is That Free Lumber Would Save Our Forests.

It has been assumed here for some lime that James R. Garfield of Ohio would time that James R. Serrelary of the In-Payne, the chairman, led a good deal of the argument used to offset the contention that lumber men of the United States were in danger from Canadian competition in the event of the lowering of removal of the duty. Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania said nothing. Mr. Fordney of Michigan was the one member of the committee who lined up steadfastly with those declaring that the duties on lumber should not be disturbed except it were to raise them. the argument used to offset the con-

Some of the biggest lumber dealers in the country took part in the controversy. Those favoring the removal of the duty Changes to Be Made in the Immigrawere of the opinion that free lumber would not hurt the lumber business in this country and would conserve the forests. Those opposed said it would markets on this side. All of them declared positively that they did not know of the existence of a lumber trust or of any existence of a lumber trust or of any trade agreement to maintain prices among the owners of the mills, of which, it was said, there are 28,000 in this country.

Edward Hines of Chicago thought a reduction would be a discrimination against the lumber interests. With Representative Randall of Texas he agreed that it might give the farmers of West Texas, for instance, their rough lumber cheaper, but the loss to them resulting from the damage to lumber interests would from the damage to lumber interests would. from the damage to lumber interests would more than offset their gain.

Brown of Chadbourne, N. C., asked that the duty on lumber be retained, or else the duty on lumber be retained, or else that the duty on kindred materials, like steel and concrete, be reduced correspondingly with lumber.

Theodore M. Knappen of Minnesota made a plea in favor of putting lumber on the free list. He said he represented the Forest Conservation League, recently organized to get the views of consumers and the needs of the country in lumber before the committee. Three interests, he said, controlled the timber of this country. Free trade on lumber would allow the trade to draw on foreign countries and forests that were now being denuded would be saved. The timber of the Northwest had been so depleted that in five years the last lumber mill would leave Minneapolis. He asked if it was the purpose of Congress to protect monopoly in a great national resource and not protect the resource.

Free trade would not cause Canadian lumber to come to the United States in large quantities. The Canadian lumberman quantities. The Canadian lumberman could not meet American competition, as the cost of his product was greater. Charles E. Goodyear of Buffalo told the committee that if the protective duty was taken off lumber he would consider that he had been "buncoed" by the Re-R. L. HIGHER DUTIES ON BOOKS. Unions in Book Trades Will Ask for Them in Washington Te-day.

Representatives of the New York Typothetæ, the United Typothetæ of America and the Lithographers International Protective and Beneficial Association will appear before the Ways and Means Committee at Washington to-day and ask for an increase in the duties on books. Secretary Smith of the New York Typothetæ expressed the gist of the contention of the unions as follows: The Typothetæ did not want to have a duty on any imports which were admitted here duty free on philanthropic grounds. For instance, books for the blind are admitted duty free and we would be the first to oppose any agitation to place a duty on them or any other books admitted on humanitarian grounds, but we no object to the admission of printed matter valued at millions of dollars yearly to which this does not apply. The tariff, as far as the printing trade is concerned, needs revision very badly. We refer as far as the printing trade is concerned, needs revision very badly. We refer particularly to imports from Germany and England. In Germany the wages are at the highest one-third of what they are here and in England they average 50 per cent. of what they are here."

FORGED ORDERS, STOLEN TIRES President of One Concern Accused by Another of Receiving Them.

Otto Braunwarth, president of the Broadway Rubber Tire Company of 53 West Sixty-third street, was a prisoner before Magistrate Walsh in the West Side police court yesterday charged with receiving $294 worth of tires which Frank A. Leinal of the Continental Caoutchoud Company, 1799 Broadway, declared were stolen from the latter company.

Braunwarth, who was arraigned on a short affidavit, was held in $1,000 bail for examination to-day. He was unable to examination to-day. He was unable to obtain a bondsman, and Magistrate Walsh finally paroled him on his own recognizance. His examination will be in conjunction with that of Irving Bernstein, previously arrested and arraigned on the charge of the larceny of the tires. Bernstein was held without bail.

According to Mr. Leinal the Continental company was robbed of $20,000 worth of tires and accessories. The police declare that over $600 worth of the goods has been recovered. According to their statement Bernstein got the tires from the Continental company by means of forged orders.
